Disability Inclusion Action Plan

2017-2021
The City of Parramatta Council acknowledges the Traditional Owners of the land and waters of Parramatta, the Darug peoples. Parramatta has been home to the Darug peoples for over 60,000 years, and they maintain an ongoing connection to country.

This connection to country transcends time and place and makes Parramatta an area of significance for the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community. At City of Parramatta, we are committed to Reconciliation and to ensuring that Parramatta remains a place of choice to live, work and play for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Parramatta is a city in transformation, powering growth as Sydney’s Central City. It’s a revitalisation that includes significant infrastructure investment across transport, education, health, sport and culture. It brings new opportunities for City of Parramatta Council to leverage this growth to meet the needs of our communities, guided by our vision to be Sydney’s Central City, sustainable, liveable and productive – inspired by our communities.

As we progress that vision, it is essential to ensure that we also build a socially sustainable community in which all of our people share in that positive future. We are committed to creating an inclusive and accessible City for everyone who lives, works and visits the Parramatta local government area.

Australia is positively transforming its approach to supporting people with disability. Both Federal and State Governments have passed important pieces of legislation which address the needs of people with disability, and the National Disability Insurance Scheme now operating in Western Sydney introduces completely new ways to provide individuals living with disability with choice and control in their lives.

We recognise that the barriers people with disability encounter in participating in community life are not just about the individual or their impairment. Disability arises from the interaction between people living with impairments and the physical, attitudinal, communication and social barriers they face in their environment.

Our Disability Inclusion Action Plan seeks to address these barriers to accessibility and inclusion through direct action or advocacy. Our aim is to create opportunities for people with a disability to be involved in all areas of life in our community.

Implementing the Plan will reach across all areas of the Council, and will be supported by providing the management focus and resources needed to translate our commitment into effective results. We will be reporting on our initiatives both within Council, and into the wider community via our annual reporting requirements.

The actions Council will take in implementing this Plan will not only result in improved outcomes for people living with disability, but also have a positive impact on the wider community. Everyone benefits from better access, and we all benefit from living in a community that values inclusion and diversity.
PARRAMATTA IS FOR EVERYONE

OUTLINE OF OUR DISABILITY INCLUSION ACTION PLAN

This Plan outlines the practical steps the City of Parramatta Council will take over the next four years to create a more inclusive community for people with disability who are living in the Parramatta local government area.

It outlines how Council proposes to address the four key focus areas nominated by people with disability as being of primary importance to them in creating an inclusive community:

• Developing positive community attitudes and behaviours
• Creating liveable communities
• Supporting access to meaningful employment
• Improving access to services through better systems and processes.

After locating this Plan within our current Vision and Priorities and summarising the wider legislative framework for the planning process, the Plan examines some of the characteristics of people living with disability in our community. Council’s strengths and our challenges in addressing the inclusion needs of this group are then outlined.

The Plan reports on our findings from the structured consultation processes we carried out with people with disabilities in our community, their support people and their families. The staff at the City of Parramatta Council also responded to the opportunity we provided to tell us their views about making Council a more inclusive organisation.

Informed by that feedback, the Plan sets out a comprehensive set of actions and indicates how the implementation of the Plan will be resourced, monitored, evaluated and reported.

The Disability Inclusion Act 2014 defines disability as ‘long-term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairment which in interaction with various barriers may hinder the full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others’
A LIVEABLE COMMUNITY
By addressing barriers to inclusion we ensure that people with disability can participate in their community giving them a greater sense of belonging and an improved quality of life.

In a liveable City everyone is able to move around freely and engage in all that the City has to offer, and the City meets the needs of its residents at all stages of their life.

A PRODUCTIVE COMMUNITY
The whole Parramatta community is stronger when everyone achieves their full potential. Businesses thrive and employers including Council benefit from having the diverse skills and talent of people with disability in their workforce.

Employment provides independence for people with disability, enabling them to live with dignity and security. They have the opportunity to contribute to a growing economy, reduce their reliance on government support, and experience a positive impact on their health and general wellbeing.

Children and young people with disability thrive when they have access to quality education alongside their peers and they graduate from school with meaningful pathways to further education.

A SUSTAINABLE AND RESILIENT COMMUNITY
Promoting the full inclusion of people with disability in our City is vital to Parramatta’s ability to build a healthy, thriving and sustainable community. Barriers to access need to be overcome to make the physical environment available to all.

People with disability should be able to live to their potential with greater choice and control in their lives. With stronger connections to the wider community and improved health and wellbeing, they are able to build greater resilience.

LEADING OUR COMMUNITY
Parramatta is undergoing an unprecedented period of change, development and growth. Along with the benefits that will bring, there is also the challenge to ensure we shape a future for our City in which all people can share.

Our leadership in demonstrating best practice in access and inclusion, the transparency with which we work and the effectiveness with which we advocate for people with disability will help ensure that all people in our community are able to take advantage of the opportunities our City offers.

FULFILLING THE CITY OF PARRAMATTA COUNCIL VISION

OUR VISION
We believe that our Disability Inclusion Action Plan is a vital part of our work to achieve the City of Parramatta Council’s vision and implement our priorities for the City.
THE CASE FOR INCLUSION

Personal choice and control is only possible when communities are inclusive of all people including people with disability. Real diversity is not achieved unless people with disability are provided with equal opportunity to participate in community life.

As a community we are poorer without a diverse range of viewpoints and individual perspectives.

Exclusion leads to disadvantage and discrimination, which have far-reaching negative impacts across all aspects of life, including health, welfare, education and employment. These impacts are felt beyond the individual, with families in the broader community being negatively impacted by a non-inclusive community.

Employment can provide independence, reduce reliance on benefits and improve the living standards of people with disability. This can have positive health impacts and contribute to a greater sense of self-worth.

Access to places and to processes benefits not only people with disability, but older people, parents with prams and business owners by expanding their business reach. There is a strong economic case to increase inclusion in our community.

THE POLICY AND LEGISLATIVE CONTEXT FOR OUR PLAN

Australia is undergoing a period of dramatic and exciting reform in relation to disability policy and planning.

The ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in 2008 signified a shifting attitude towards people with disability by acknowledging that they have the same rights as those without a disability and that their rights should be protected by law and promoted by Government.

For the first time all levels of government across Australia have committed to a unified, national approach to improving the lives of people with disability, their families and carers through the adoption of the National Disability Strategy in 2010.

In this 10-year plan for improving life for Australians living with a disability, their family and carers, State and Federal governments have committed to an approach where the individual is the centre of focus rather than their disability.

The NSW Disability Inclusion Act was passed by the NSW Parliament in 2014. It requires State and Local Governments to develop Disability Inclusion Action Plans to ensure that practical measures are taken at a State and Local level to uphold the rights of people with disability.

This Act is based on a social model of disability which highlights that disability is not just about an individual or their impairment. Rather disability arises from the interaction between people living with impairments and the barriers they face in their physical, attitudinal, communication and social environments.

The City of Parramatta acknowledges that the onus to break down barriers rests with the community and that Council has a leadership role to play in this area.

A range of other legislation and policies are relevant to our Disability Inclusion Action Plan. The Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (DDA) states that discrimination on the basis of disability is unlawful. Council has an obligation to make facilities and services accessible and we are committed to ensuring we meet that obligation under the DDA.

OTHER LEGISLATION RELEVANT TO THIS PLAN INCLUDES:

- Commonwealth Disability (Access to Premises - Building) Standards 2010
- NSW Anti-Discrimination Act 1977
- Australian Standard (AS1428) - Design for Access and Mobility
- Disability Standards for Public Transport 2002
- Web Accessibility Nation Transition Strategy 2010
UNDERSTANDING DISABILITY IN PARRAMATTA

In preparing this Plan we researched a range of data about the incidence and impact of disability in our community. Our sources included information provided by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) from surveys in 2011 and 2015, as well as data held within the City of Parramatta.

The insights into disability in our community we gained from this research were supplemented by the consultation processes reported later in the Plan.

THE INCIDENCE OF DISABILITY IN CITY OF PARRAMATTA

In 2015 the ABS reported that almost 1 in 5 (18.5%) people in Australia were living with disability. Based on Parramatta’s population in 2017, there are approximately 45,400 people living with disability in our City.

THE IMPACT OF DISABILITY IN THE CITY OF PARRAMATTA

Another way to understand the impact of disability is to imagine the incidence of various disability related outcomes if the City of Parramatta was a village of 100 people.

18 people would have some type of disability and of those people...

15 would have a physical condition
4 would have cognitive or behavioural disorders
4 would need help with daily living activities such as showering and dressing
14 would participate in physical activities, visit public places and engage with friends and family.
Parramatta was a village of 100

7 would have completed year 12 or equivalent
4 would have a Bachelor Degree or above
6 would report they avoid situations due to their disability
9 would use aids or equipment due to their condition

7 would be on a pension
5 would be working fulltime
2 would report they have experienced discrimination or unfair treatment
9 would be unemployed
7 would have difficulty with steps

9 would live in low income households earning less than $614 per week
7 would have difficulty catching public transport

The community impacted by disability is just as diverse as any other part of Australian society. Some people require a high level of support in their day-to-day lives, while many others live totally independently.

The following data reported by the ABS in 2011 gives insights into the challenges faced by people with disability in the City of Parramatta LGA whose high level support needs required day-to-day assistance in areas such as showering and dressing.

Some 4% of the population of the City of Parramatta or 7,612 people were estimated to be in this group in 2011.

Income
- they are more likely to live in low income households earning less than $614 per week – 23.1% compared to 10.7% of the total population

Unemployment
- 15.7% of the 93 people who identified as being in the labour force were unemployed compared to 5.9% of the total population

Education
- 22.5% of this group (aged 15 years+) hold non-school educational qualifications, compared to 53.4% of the total population

Car Ownership
- they are more likely to live in a household with no motor vehicles – 16.6% compared to 7% of the total population

Social Housing
- they are more likely to live in social housing – 15% compared to 4.2% of the total population

Internet Access
- they are less likely to have an internet connection – 49.8% compared to 81.3% of the total population

Labour Force Participation
- they are less likely to participate in the workforce – 10.4% compared to 67.1% for the total population

THE CARER WORKFORCE

A vital component of our Inclusion Plan must be addressing the prevalence and importance of the unpaid care workforce which is meeting the needs of people with disabilities, long-term illnesses or living with old age.

In 2011 there were 16,662 carers (10.5% of the total population) providing unpaid assistance to meet such needs.

UNDERSTANDING OUR CHALLENGE

In preparing to develop this Plan, we reviewed the strengths that the City of Parramatta Council can draw on in meeting the challenges of building inclusion in the coming years. We also looked at areas where we can already see we will need to particularly focus to be successful.

OUR STRENGTHS

AN INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT PLACE

Parramatta is increasingly acknowledged as the demographic and geographical heart of the City. It is the home of major city-scale initiatives which will drive employment and growth for the whole Western Sydney region, but particularly for our City.

As those initiatives roll out, the residents of Parramatta will be increasingly well connected across the City and within local neighbourhoods.

The City of Parramatta will increasingly be a centre of employment particularly as greatly improved public transport improves access.

AN EXISTING NETWORK OF SUPPORTIVE AGENCIES AND SERVICES

Parramatta is located at the geographic heart of Sydney, and is already well resourced in terms of networks and agencies which support people with disability.

Our community includes committed not for profit disability service providers who advocate for and provide services to people with disability. Regional Government agencies are located here, one of Australia’s largest health, research and education precincts is at Westmead and the University of Western Sydney is in our community.

Council is well placed to build on its current relationships to develop a range of partnerships with such bodies to address barriers to inclusion.

OUR CURRENT ACCESS AND INCLUSION INITIATIVES

The City of Parramatta already addresses inclusion and access in a number of ways.

- Our Access and Equity Policy sets out guidelines for removing barriers in the design and delivery of information, programs, services and facilities, endeavouring to provide all community members with opportunities to enhance their overall social, cultural and economic wellbeing.

- Some of our programs and services actively support the inclusion of people with disabilities. These include programs and activities at the Riverside Theatres, in children’s services, via lifelong learning activities and social support services, in recreation activities, drama workshops, at community events and in our libraries.

- Specific access and inclusion initiatives include hearing augmentation, providing Auslan interpreters, using accessible signage and pictures, and providing public computers with larger keyboards. Audio and vision adaptability, talking books and arranging audio descriptors and translation for theatre shows as well as sensory friendly environments are other examples.

- Council also supports, trains and mentors local community organisations to help strengthen their capacity to address local needs, including working with people with disabilities.

- Specific Council Advisory Committees include community members with experience and/or expertise in areas related to access and inclusion.

DEVELOPING NEW FACILITIES

In consultation with key stakeholders, Council is currently developing the concept and design framework for a fully inclusive playground. Informed by feedback from the community, we are also developing guiding principles that will inform future inclusive playground developments.

We spend more than $2.5m each year constructing and upgrading footpaths across the LGA through our Pedestrian Access and Mobility Program.
OUR CHALLENGES

PHYSICAL CHANGE IN THE CITY OF PARRAMATTA

The Parramatta CBD is currently experiencing a large amount of public and private investment and significantly more is planned to occur over the next 20 years.

Such substantial infrastructure development creates significant change and challenge by disrupting the physical environment.

The logistics of getting about in a City going through such a transformation are challenging. Accessing services and public transport and providing for pedestrian traffic can be difficult for everyone, but particularly for people with disability.

The Community Transport services that are critical for transporting people to essential services can also be disrupted, while just ensuring everyone has access to the information they need to understand and deal with the changes is also difficult.

INCREASING PRESSURE ON AGEING INFRASTRUCTURE

The existing social and physical infrastructure in the Parramatta LGA is ageing, and in a significant number of cases our facilities don’t meet access and inclusion principles.

Many people experience challenges getting around the City, due to inaccessible public transport, limited designated parking and ageing footpaths. Many services and businesses remain inaccessible.

Many of the Council’s own buildings and facilities are not accessible to everyone, contributing to barriers that prevent inclusion for all.

A key challenge is that upgrading and retrofitting existing buildings and facilities to provide accessibility is costly and takes time.

INEQUALITY IN THE COMMUNITY

People with disabilities do not have the same opportunities as people without disability. Historical segregation and discrimination towards people with disability has resulted in them being disadvantaged. Their experience of barriers to participation in community life has limited their ability to fulfil their potential.

As a consequence, people with disabilities in our community are more likely than others to experience poverty, live in poor quality or insecure housing and have low levels of education. They are more often socially isolated and have fewer opportunities to take part in community life.

Social and economic inequality weakens any community, and as we seek to develop a future for our City that all people can share in, addressing the social sustainability issues for people living with disability is a critical part of making our City stronger, more resilient, more productive, more sustainable and more liveable.

REFORM AND CHANGE IN THE DISABILITY SECTOR

Arising from dramatic reforms in our national approach to disability, very substantial changes are underway in the ways in which people with disability are supported. While those changes are overwhelmingly positive, they nevertheless disrupt and challenge the ways in which such support has historically been provided.

The National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) is central to these developments, replacing the historic model of government block funding grants for support being given to service providers, which then delivered their contracted service to the person with disability.

As part of its overall work with people with disability, the City of Parramatta Council has been a participant in delivering such programs, and has worked closely with other disability providers based in our community in providing a range of supports to meet their needs.

By contrast with the current model, NDIS delivers individuals choice and control by allocating them funding for an agreed package of disability supports which they can seek to purchase from the service provider of their choice.

While NDIS potentially brings many benefits, it is just being rolled out in Western Sydney, and many aspects of the new scheme are still being finalised. NDIS represents one of the greatest social reforms undertaken in our country in many decades, and brings change to all agencies and individuals involved with disability.

Everyone has to understand and navigate a new system which while it promises better support and is generally welcomed, is still being developed and established. Many aspects of the scheme are still being evolved, and its impact on all involved including the City of Parramatta Council is still developing and being assessed.

The NSW Government’s role as a disability service provider is being closed down as the national scheme takes responsibility. Disability service providers in the not for profit sector are entering a competitive market in which they have to attract participants in ways quite different to their past practices.

With little or no government transition funding and in a constrained cost per service model these organisations have to reorganise, retrain and re-orientate themselves to succeed in a much more competitive market-based system.

Council will also have to review its service arrangements, as well as understanding the impact the new arrangements will have on the service providers with whom it has historically worked in the City of Parramatta LGA.

REMEMBERING ‘HIDDEN’ DISABILITY

When people think of disability, they often focus on physical disability. However, other disability needs must also be considered when planning for access and inclusion.

Disabilities that are not so obvious by simply looking at a person include mental illness, chronic medical conditions, brain injuries, learning disabilities, cognitive impairment, and hearing or vision loss.

Addressing barriers to inclusion for people with such ‘hidden’ disabilities can often be more complex. It requires careful consultation and having sufficient knowledge and appropriate skills available to ensure that people with such disabilities don’t inadvertently fall through service gaps and fail to receive the support they require.
Having researched the nature of disability in our community, and systematically thought about Council’s strengths and challenges in developing this Plan, we have set about ensuring we have a high-quality understanding of the barriers to inclusion experienced by people in the City of Parramatta LGA.

WHO WE CONSULTED

We advertised our consultations widely, inviting participation and seeking the views of the organisations and the individuals involved.

Posters and flyers were distributed to local disability services and made available in community libraries, at the Council’s Customer Service desk, at the Heritage Centre and in local shopping centres.

Information about the opportunity was included in the Parramatta Pulse resident’s newsletter, in the Council Administrators Column in the local newspaper and in the LEEP CommunityNet newsletter.

We advertised on Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and placed information on the Council’s website.

Our email marketing and telephone campaign reached out across local services and other agencies in our community to invite their participation.

CONSULTING OUR COMMUNITY
The findings of our consultations were summarised in detailed written reports and presented back to Council. We used those findings as a key part of our discussions in developing the actions outlined later in this Plan.

ATTITUDES AND PERCEPTIONS ABOUT DISABILITY

People have mixed experiences in relation to inclusion in Parramatta. Some felt that Parramatta is reasonably inclusive as they have had access to opportunities in our area.

However, others felt that Parramatta has a long way to go to become an inclusive City. They perceive there is very limited community awareness about the diversity of disability and they reported encountering negative and uninformed attitudes towards people with disability.

A lack of accessible parking and the inaccessibility of other facilities throughout the City are seen as significant barriers, and coping with the impact of damaged infrastructure such as broken footpaths represents real challenges for people with disability.

The City of Parramatta Council was seen as having an important role to play in creating greater awareness of disability and in challenging community perceptions of people with disability.

To create ‘an inclusive attitude’ in our City, Council should provide training and information about different types of disability to its staff and to the wider community.

“Parramatta needs to create an awareness of deafness, need to be able to try and converse with everyone” (focus)

“Being treated as abnormal rather than as people” (survey)

“There appears to be very little recognition of the needs of people with intellectual disability in terms of inclusive activities” (survey)
ACCESSIBLE PARKING AND SAFE DROP-OFF POINTS
The lack of accessible parking in Parramatta particularly the CBD was identified as a major access and therefore inclusion issue that must be addressed as a priority.

People often have no other transport option other than to drive to appointments or access facilities and events in Parramatta. However, the limited number of accessible parking spots currently provided is resulting in people receiving parking infringements.

The importance of providing well-advertised, safe drop off points throughout the CBD where parking is an issue was also stressed, both for individuals and for community transport services.

“Poor footpaths in many areas, lack of transport, inadequate parking for people with a disability” (survey)

ACCESSIBLE TOILETS
The lack of accessible toilets throughout the Parramatta LGA particularly in the CBD was highlighted as a major barrier to people freely accessing the City to take part in community life.

The lack of accessible toilets results in people having to or choosing to avoid the CBD, Parramatta Park and Lake Parramatta in particular. They have to carefully plan their outings to ensure they will not need to use amenities.

The lack of public toilets between the River Foreshore and Centenary Square particularly needs to be addressed.

Providing accessible toilets in all public buildings was identified as the second most important factor in making the City more accessible. Providing change tables in accessible toilets also needs to be considered.

“No accessible toilets between Riverside Theatre all the way to Town Hall or the station” (focus)

“You may have to limit liquids to avoid having to go to the toilet” (focus)

Parramatta Park is where people practice Bocce “we need to go all the way back to Harris Park if someone wants to go to the toilet” (focus)

ACCESSING TRANSPORT
Transport limitations were identified as a key barrier to accessibility as they challenge an individual’s ability to independently move around the LGA.

Some train stations in the Parramatta LGA remain inaccessible. More needs to be done to ensure public transport generally is more accessible.

The varying attitudes towards people with disability demonstrated by transport staff adversely impact on the experiences of people with disability in using public transport.

Providing better training for transport staff and installing better signage were two key improvements suggested. Particular consideration needs to be given to how last minute timetable changes are communicated, including using different written and spoken formats.

People saw a role for Council to represent the needs of residents to transport authorities and advocate for fully accessible transport in Parramatta.

“I’m petrified of getting off the bus in a wheelchair, it’s too steep. I have to rely on the driver to put the ramp down. It’s cheaper than catching a taxi” (focus)

“Sometimes I catch buses or trains and they have a journey written on the top if there is a delay I cannot hear the announcement; they should provide information in a visual way” (focus)

ACCESSIBLE PATHWAYS AND TRAFFIC CONSIDERATIONS
Being unable to easily get around the City was also identified as a major barrier to inclusion. Providing continuously accessible paths of travel between facilities and services in the City, the suburbs and public areas was identified as a priority.

Poor quality footpaths and uneven surfaces also present an important challenge because they unnecessarily make traveling more difficult and less safe.

“Paving near station, a lot of the tiles are loose and stick up and it will bump people in wheelchairs and you hit them and could fall over” (focus)
SPORTING, CULTURAL AND RECREATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

The importance of sporting and recreational opportunities for people with disability was highlighted, with many people currently going outside the LGA for such opportunities.

People of all ages need more inclusive opportunities in our LGA.

The most important factor to help make Parramatta more accessible raised in our consultations was to involve people with disability in planning such events.

Early consideration of venues, transport, toilets and parking was identified as vital to making community programs and events more accessible.

Ensuring our planned new aquatic centre is fully accessible was a particular concern and the need for thorough consultation with people with disability in the planning of the facility was stressed.

“Lack of jobs, inclusion, need more sporting events for them, must be able to get into places easily e.g. no swinging doors, toilets” (survey)

EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION

The lack of consistent and clear information about what’s available in the LGA for people with disability was seen as creating barriers to inclusion.

Overall awareness of the inclusive programs currently offered by Council is low. The most responsive and inclusive services were identified as Libraries, Customer Service Centre, and the Heritage and Information Centre. Major events were also seen as responsive and inclusive.

Interestingly, the existing programs most highly rated for inclusion by those who use them were not well known to the broader group. This includes the drama programs and sensory friendly performances offered by Riverside Theatre and inclusion support at childcare services.

People are seeking varied methods of communication including the Council website, newsletter, Parramatta Pulse and Local papers. Email was identified as the preferred method of communication.

Communication about whether our major events are accessible for those with disability was identified as particularly important.

The Council’s website needs to be further developed to make it more accessible and easier to navigate. A specific section of the site should include relevant and targeted information relating to inclusive programs, employment opportunities and facilities for people with disability.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES?
Access to meaningful employment opportunities is an issue of concern for many people who are actively looking for paid employment but having limited success.

As an employer, Council could increase employment opportunities for people with disability by designing roles to suit them, providing more flexible work hours, making work places more accessible, and employing people through transition to work programs.

City of Parramatta staff identified many actions Council could take to encourage diversity within the workforce. They included making facilities and infrastructure more accessible, increasing disability awareness training, encouraging flexible working arrangements, and enhancing communication.

(survey)

KEY FOCUS AREAS

DEVELOPING POSITIVE COMMUNITY ATTITUDES AND BEHAVIOURS

The attitudes and behaviours of the general community towards people with disability have been described as the single greatest barrier to full access and inclusion. Those attitudes are often determined by ignorance, fear or lack of opportunity to interact with people with disability.

CREATING LIVEABLE COMMUNITIES

Liveable communities are achieved by applying the principles of universal design. These ensure that products, environments, programs and services are designed to be usable by all people of different ages and abilities over time, to the greatest extent possible and without the need for adaptation or specialised design.

SUPPORTING ACCESS TO MEANINGFUL EMPLOYMENT

Employment and economic security are closely related for most people. Employment contributes to independence and feelings of self-worth, social interaction and mental health, and increased opportunities to support individual choice and control. Employment rates for people with disability are significantly lower than in the wider community, and there are multiple barriers to the employment process for people with disability. These include inaccessible venues, lack of reasonable adjustments to the work environment, rigid role descriptions and online testing and poor career planning opportunities.

IMPROVING ACCESS TO SERVICES THROUGH IMPROVED SYSTEMS AND PROCESSES

People with disability commonly have difficulty navigating systems and processes to access the services and support they need. Some of their difficulties stem from the quality of service and training provided for frontline people, the nature of the systems and processes required to access the services and the lack of accessible options for communicating, accessing information or providing input or feedback. A substantial range of communication formats may be needed.
1. DEVELOPING POSITIVE ATTITUDES AND BEHAVIOURS

The City of Parramatta Council is committed to promoting and developing positive and inclusive attitudes and behaviours towards people with disability across the community.
